Bible school graduation: I normally teach in Vipingo, but a sister school has been started in Nyali, Mombasa. The administration decided to combine the graduation classes, which was a good idea. When the Nyali class representative came forward to give his speech, he started by addressing me saying, “I know you don’t remember me, but I’m here because of you.” I was surprised and embarrassed, because he was right. I didn’t remember him. He gave a good speech causing the audience to laugh and cheer.

After the celebration was finished, Alex came and reminded me of a class I was teaching in Shanzu. He said he and his wife came to school in Nyali, because of my influence. They graduated together, so that was pretty cool.

Pictured here are Jared Kidali, his wife in the middle, two church members flanking, Kidali kids and Lawrence Munywoki kneeling with his diploma. I started working casually with Kidali some years ago, and our relationship has grown in a fun way. He took Munywoki under his wing after they graduated from Vipingo. I teach and preach in his church once a month, and Pastor and Mrs. Kidali and Munywoki come to my place on Fridays to talk Bible and theology. They all know how to ask hard questions to put me through my paces.

Saturday study group: I have been meeting with a small group of young adults (in their twenties) for more than a year. We started with study through Daniel, then Matthew 24-25 and followed that with a study through Revelation. Like the Kidalis and Munywoki, these people have a strong desire to learn the Word of God. It is humbling and exciting at the same time.

The opportunities to have fellowship around the Bible keep expanding. Michelle stays busy with this kind of work, too. We can’t thank God and you enough for helping us to be here to help folks know God and the Bible a little more.

Thank you very much for lifting us up in prayer and continuing your faithful support in these challenging times.
